The mood of today's readings is summed up well in the Responsorial Psalm. The people have seen their country ravaged by war, their city Jerusalem (called Zion in this psalm) has been destroyed along with its temple, and they have been living as exiles in Babylon. Then, to their utter amazement, they have been given permission by king Cyrus, the Persian conqueror of Babylon, to return home, to rebuild their country and their lives. It was all too good to be true. In the words of the psalm 'When the Lord restored the fortunes of Zion, it seemed like a dream' (Psalm 126:1). They had left Jerusalem in tears, now they are returning 'full of song'. Their exile is over, there is still much that needs healing and so, in the midst of their overwhelming joy, they continue to pray: 'Deliver us, O Lord, from our bondage, as streams in dry land' (Psalm 126:4).
