rescheduled for Wednesday September 14th at 7.30pm in Kilbrittain Community Hall. This is open to parents of likely members, past members over 18 years and anyone else interested in leading the club into the future. John Dennigan, development officer, will attend, and will outline what Foroige is about, how leaders become involved and decide if there is enough support available to restart the club. #### Today's Gospel Pharisees classified certain behaviours as sinful, and those who did them, they judged as sinners. They criticised Jesus for eating with sinners.

Since we have certain standards, we do judge certain actions to be wrong. If we were to do them knowingly and freely, we would be sinning. But we can never say that others who do them are sinners; because who knows another person's heart?

If Jesus was not prepared to eat with sinners, he would have had to eat by himself. In fact, Jesus ate frequently with tax collectors, with Pharisees, and with disciples.

How do you mix easily with people whose behaviour you strongly disagree with? who constantly criticise you, at least behind your back? It can be a cop out to say: "Love the sinner, hate the sin." and especially, "You can love people without liking them." Would you be satisfied to know that God loved you, but didn't really like you?

I believe that God likes me, though sometimes I catch myself out feeling uncertain. Equally hard is to believe that God actually likes those people I definitely don't like.

How does God manage to like everyone? For a start, I think that, when God sees us, God sees into our depths. I do that God sees our deepest sense of being, our insecurity, our deep loneliness, our deepest pain.
